Facilitator Development

My big project, a Train the Trainer course, has been sidelined due to other work and events surrounding your humble author. I also found a great volume of information from several schools of thought and I was initially overwhelmed. I organized the primary elements and realized that this would be a two-or three-day class. I've whittled it down to the bare essentials in an outline for a one-day session with the morning concentrating on adult learning vs instructor/facilitator and afternoon on application - curriculum design and delivery. But I'm concerned that this would give it short shrift because there's so much that plays into each of these items.

Progress is slow; life keeps interrupting. On a positive note, PCC AI Beddows will deliver the Joke of the Day to you all.
